DESIDERATA

GO PLACIDLY AMID THE NOISE & HASTE, & REMEMBER WHAT PEACE THERE MAY BE IN SILENCE. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly & clearly; and listen to others, even the dull & ignorant; they too have their story. Avoid loud & aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain & bitter; for always there will be greater & lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism. Be yourself. Especially do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity & disenchantment it is perennial as the grass. Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue & loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees & the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors & aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul. With all its sham, drudgery & broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.

In Memoriam

On Friday, April 14, a dark cloud passed over Red Lion, as a community learned of the passing of Jeanette L. Espenshade, a business education teacher at Red Lion Area Senior High School. The community would long remember her as she was active in church, civic, and charity affairs.

A native of the Middletown-Hershey area, Miss Espenshade had spent 28 of her 31 teaching years at Red Lion. In 1966, the Red Lion Jaycees proudly acknowledged her community service, presenting her with the second annual Distinguished Citizen Award. Red Lion Area No. 9703 5-16-72 Im 7.

Miss Espenshade headed the Red Lion March of Dimes campaign for the National Foundation, and also chaired various fundraising events for the past several years. She freely assisted with the United Fund, Cancer Society, and Heart Association fund drives.

But her community service did not stop there. Having been a member of Grace Lutheran Church, she sang on the choir, taught Sunday School, and headed the Lutheran Church Women. She was past president, past director, and recording secretary of District 7 Red Lion Business and Professional Women's Club. She gave tirelessly of her time and energy as director of the Kaltreider Memorial Library.

Avoid loud & aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain & bitter: for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans.

The chief characteristic of the typical Aquarian is his extraordinary broadness of vision. He is unbiased and open-minded, without prejudice or superstition of any kind. Tradition and authority leave him untouched. When he finds himself face to face with them, he regards them possibly with a certain friendliness and interest. His ways are neither militant or aggressive. He can wait; and the longer he waits, the more clearly he realizes the difficulty of attaining certainty about anything that is worth knowing. He is willing to learn from anyone, for the only thing of which he is sure is that he does not know very much. He is the finest possible type of scientist, the student of laws, patient, and untiring. The Aquarian has a way of looking at life's problems from the outside rather than from the center. Instead of trusting others, he studies them, observing their words and actions and if possible even their thoughts, earnestly, patiently, and carefully. It also craves for personal and particular appreciation and attention. If they are of a jealous and exacting disposition, friendship with him will prove impossible.

The strength of the typical Piscarian lies in his ideals and dreams rather than in his actions. He usually has little worldly ambition, cares nothing for rank or power, seldom succeeds in making money, and rarely accumulates it. Many people born under this sign are attracted to the cloister or shrink from society and from any competition, rivalry, and strife. Many others go to sea, or spend available recreation time on a yacht or fishing boat, preferring the silent world of waters. With the vast ocean below and the star-spangled sky above, they rest content, calm and fearless. And yet it is difficult to say that any particular profession is impossible or unsuitable for a Piscarian. The yearning for unity and the sense of completion carries many Pisceans onto the stage. This may to some extent prove trying but the actual work of interpretation always gives these people great delight. The true-born Piscarian generally learns sooner or later that all the world is a stage. Many Piscarians are fitted to enter the church, the army, and the navy, or to take employment in institutions such as hospital, universities, and colleges.

Some are intellectual pioneers with abundance of energy and vitality, masterful, independent, and self-reliant. Their personality is forceful and original. They are captains, leaders, the pioneers among men. They are sometimes hampered by diffidence and shyness, but never by pessimism. Positions of authority and responsibility will seem to fall naturally to the native's lot. In some cases he will be militant, domineering, intolerant of opposition or contradiction, hard and unyielding. The combination increases self-esteem and independence. Troubles follow impulsive actions and rash conduct. There is a tendency to live too much in the mind and some danger of becoming too self-centered or conceited. Tranquility and serenity are seldom appreciated at their true value by this type and still more seldom achieved; but Ariesians are delightfully refreshing to meet, for they are bright and lively in society, and a boom to all who desire help in housing public interest in their social and charitable undertakings. Other and very different types of humanity may excel in planning details and in organization, but without efficient aid from the Ariesians, the most desirable projects often make little headway, and the best-laid schemes fall to the ground.

Foreign Travel Club Tours Europe

The foreign travel club had fun getting ready to go on their trip.

The Eiffel Tower is one of the many sites in Paris.

Is this the right train? I think we're lost.

This is what I call a need for more room.

Boy are we tired.

They take time out for a picture.

The flood of '72 will be something to remember for a long time.

Prom 1972

Senior class president Brad Keller and Michelle Williams lead the '72 Prom.

May 26, 1972 was a Friday evening to remember. The Junior-Senior Prom, "Golden Silences of Spring" was special and more impressing than any prom before, because it took place at the Yorktowne Hotel. The Bill Collin's Orchestra provided entertainment for the prom which lasted from 8 PM-12 PM.

Donna Anderson, Craig Bahn, and Roxann Enterline catch a glimpse of the York Towne from the balcony.

Vice President of the school board, Donald Snyder, greets a few of the guests.

Kathy and Jesse seem to be enjoying themselves.

You might know that Craig Trout would be looking at the camera!

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzkee welcome Diane Dietz and Steve Denton.

Attending the prom are juniors Sheila Schlag, Theresa Rothenberger, and their escorts.

Kathy Hammers and her escort, Marlyn Bacon, an alumnus of Red Lion.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism.

The chief characteristic of this type is exuberance or overplus of intellectual energy, which must find expression and usually does so in a variety of ways. This craving for diversity and impatience with repetition or sameness leads, in the case of fully developed Geminians, or Mercurians, to brilliant results, alike in experimental science, literature, and art. They really strike the true keynote of their being, joy, only when in the act of expressing some essential part of themselves, and having attained such expression they are rarely content to rest upon their oars. Theirs is a charming type, whose true function it is to make life more interesting and beautiful for themselves and others; to stimulate, refresh, and revive their fellow men by force of exhortation and example. A keen desire for intellectual satisfaction is the driving force of this sign, and when their religious sense is awakened, they sometimes undergo much suffering, for they must understand and reason upon the faith that is in them, and if their surroundings are unsuitable, and the teaching offered them uncongenial, doubts and difficulties arise which must be overcome by hard wrestling before peace is attained.

The chief characteristic of the highly developed Taurean is his stability of character and of purpose. His is the steadfast mind, unshaken in adversity, and his is the power of quiet persistence in the face of difficulties. He has found his true position with regard to the universe, and that position is the center. Identified with the very heart of things, he refuses to be hustled or frightened or pushed into any false position, and generally excels in work requiring a sense of true proportion and a just appreciation of relative values. He understands the importance of system, method, and order, enjoys routine and regularity, and often shows constructive ability, especially in matters concerning the foundations and beginnings of enterprise. He works best when spurred by necessity or when inspired by the love of others, especially of his wife and family. In hard circumstances his patience and perseverance are marvelous. He generally has a horror of debt, and shows care and prudence in the administration of affairs. Acting as mainstay or prop in material ways is peculiarly congenial to him, and consequently the type makes ideal trustees and guardians — people who will make large sacrifices of time and energy, rather than fail those who have confided in them.

The highly evolved Cancerian is the master of many moods. He can feel, and make others feel, joy, sorrow, compassion, horror, and despair as no other type can, seizing the imagination and holding it by the power of his imagery and the intensity of his own feelings. The past and future are as real to him as the present. The history of his own nation, family, or class is immensely important in his eyes. He is the teacher, and cares little for smoothness of outline or grace of form so long as he can drive his lesson home. His style is vivid, often dramatic; and he continues to deliver and redeliver his message, changing and adapting its form. Public speakers of all kinds are found under the influence of this sign, as also editors and literary men who have a strong personal hold over their readers, and actors and dramatists in whom imagination is a predominant feature. These people love to come into touch with the public. Early memories of childhood and old ties of friendship are a treasure for Cancerians, who will correspond for years with people to whom they were attracted in their teens, have never met since, and are not likely to meet again.

Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself.

The fully developed Leonian commands the respect of his fellow man. His faith and trust in humanity, his knowledge that those who are working for him will do their best, and that even those who fail him will be better in the future, all combine to awaken a generous response in the hearts of others. He gives to those around him fresh courage, and sets them striving to fulfill his expectations. He is the ideal head of any large enterprise, institution, or undertaking. He never wastes his energy by asking from anyone what is not in his or her power to give. Therefore he is particularly successful in organizing activities and distributing duties. Commands, to be effective, must be easily understood, and therefore his style is simple and straightforward. He encourages both science and art by his personal interest, and takes measures for the well-being of the sick and poverty-stricken. He shows constant consideration for others. The Leonian is known for his great hospitality. When he is entertaining guests, he makes them feel that they have in some way contributed to the general enjoyment.

Virgo people are some of the most capable and yet most difficult personalities in the entire zodiac. Virgo people have inquiring minds that will not rest until they have learned all they want to know about something. They are skilled at drawing information from people, then filling in from other sources or rationalizing facts into a complete and remarkably accurate picture. Often they pick up essential data without anyone realizing what they are about. Along with keen analysis, they have remarkable memories; otherwise, they could not form the exact comparisons that they do.

The Libran's strength lies in his power of concentration, his intensity of application, and his capacity for sustained effort. He works in splendid spurts, followed by periods of complete relaxation, during which he usually declines to use any of his faculties whatever unless urgently required to do so. He feels perfectly satisfied lounging in an armchair and smoking a cigarette. This is the normal, healthy, average man, and if he is succeeding in life he is generally in one way or another a specialist. A woman who has accepted the profession of wife and mother dares not allow herself to specialize in anything. If she has a hobby dear to her heart, she must renounce it — at any rate until her children are old enough to look after themselves. She must be alert and alive and resourceful and ready for every emergency all day long. The power that gives her most assistance in her task is the power associated with Libra and the planet Venus. Vocal music especially is a rest and refreshment to them — their relaxation when they are wearied, their remedy when they are sick or sad.

A Coach's Reward

A coach knocked at the pearly gates;
His face was scared and cold;
He stood before the men of fate
For admission to the fold.
"What have you done," St. Peter asked,
"To gain admission here?"
"I've been a coach, sir," he said,
"For many and many a year."
The pearly gates swung open wide
St. Peter touched the bell.
"Come in," he said, "and choose your harp;
You've had your share of hell."

STUDENT BODY

HTON LIONS

You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

The kingdom of Scorpio is a kingdom of power. Some of his ambitions are the attainment of complete control over the will, intellect, passions, emotions, bodily activities, and psychic faculties. He not only desires rapid progress for himself, but craves it also for others, and gives freely of his own magnificent vitality to hasten their development. It is this characteristic that draws so many of this sign into the medical profession. When the ideal doctor enters the sickroom, the first impression he gives is that of power, a quiet, resolute strength and a capacity and determination to overcome suffering, disease, and death. Scorpionians are generally more or less psychic, but often fail to realize it. Their psychism is of a healthy and normal type. Besides striving to conquer death and disease, Scorpionians find intense satisfaction in dominating the forces of nature. They excel as practical engineers, and long before they have learned to show patience, will display these qualities to an admirable extent when called upon to deal with a piece of machinery. The harder the task, the more these people seem to rise to it.

The chief characteristic of the fully developed Sagittarian is his extraordinary power of mental activity. He interests himself intensely — and often succeeds in interesting others in the relation of cause to effect and effect to cause. He comes readily into touch with his fellow men, takes an eager interest in their welfare, especially in their education. He is sometimes a very successful teacher of the Socratic type, teaching his students to observe and reason and think for themselves. He is consequently better adapted for training older pupils than beginners. The study of medicine is more rarely taken up, but some Sagittarian doctors are brilliant brain specialists. Sagittarians are almost all keen sportsmen of one kind or another — excellent shots, enthusiastic fishermen, golfers, hockey players, etc. This type revels in the open air, and cannot endure the stale atmosphere of stuffy rooms. They have an immense sympathy for those doomed to a life of confinement in workshop, factory, or mine, and are often keen social reformers. They are willing to mix with all sorts and conditions of men, and to learn from anyone, whatever he has to teach.

The typical Capricornian takes life earnestly and is generally and enthusiastic upholder of tradition and authority. When fully developed he has a fine historic sense which gives him a keen interest in the events of the past, and a profound understanding of the problems of the present. He frequently treads the path of scholarship and does well at the university. This is not an easy type to analyze and it is difficult to sum up its characteristics briefly. They can accept conventions and traditional customs more easily than any other type, partly because historical values appeal to them, and partly because they possess an instinctive understanding of average humanity. The symbol of the sign — the Goat ascending the mountain — is a very appropriate one, for it is always depicted as steadily following the upward path. Their enthusiasm is slow to awaken, but it is of the kind that grows and gathers force through coming into touch with the enthusiasm of the masses of their fellow men, and they frequently throw themselves into the task of guiding a popular movement to a successful issue.

Student's Index

Be yourself. Especially do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity & disenchantment, it is as perennial as the grass.

Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors & aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul.

This Index Doesn't Include Clubs And Candid's.

Go placidly amid the noise & haste, & Remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly & clearly; and listen to others, even the dull & ignorant; they too have their story.

With all its sham, drudgery & broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.
